MRS. McCORMICK NOMINATED FOR U. S. SENATE

FIRST WOMAN SO NOMINATED BY A MAJOR PARTY

VETERAN SENATOR CHARLES S. DENEEN IS CAST ASIDE BY VOTERS

SHOW PREFERENCE FOR DYNAMIC DAUGHTER OF MARK HANNA

By MERTON T. AKERS
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Chicago, April 9.—Ruth Hanna McCormick, born to political purple, today became the first woman ever to be nominated for the United States senate by a major party.

Illinois, which furnished the first republican president, signified its choice for the G. O. P. senatorial nomination in unmistakable figures yesterday, casting aside its veteran Senator Charles S. Deneen for the dynamic daughter of Mark Hanna.

Today it appeared the final results of the primary, the first national one of the year, was a matter of adding up Mrs. McCormick's plurality.

The latest returns from 5,714 precincts of the state's 7,117 gave Mrs. McCormick 554,639 votes and Senator Deneen 380,250.

Adding machines in election headquarters hummed today as the final votes were tallied. Indications were that Mrs. McCormick's plurality might reach 200,000. In Cook county it appeared she would pile up a plurality of 150,000.

The victory was more than just a political triumph for Mrs. McCormick. It meant to her political revenge for the defeat Deneen administered her husband, Senator Medill McCormick, six years ago. Deneen won that nomination by about 6,000 votes. Thus Mrs. McCormick's revenge, six years late, was multiplied by perhaps 40-fold.

Senator Deneen, hitherto undefeated in 38 years of public service, retired to his home early today without making a statement or conceding defeat.

Mrs. McCormick, seasoned by years of politics since the days of President McKinley, took her victory calmly but there was no masking the joy it brought.

Until nearly midnight she remained silent about the primary, talking over earlier Washington days with Mrs. Longworth and seemingly unaware her fate was in the balance. About 10 o'clock she walked across Monroe street to her headquarters, her way lighted by the flashlight blasts of newspaper photographers.

Walking into the packed headquarters, Mrs. McCormick was greeted with dignified handclapping by a crowd of workers, mostly women. There was little of the atmosphere of a political headquarters in the McCormick rooms. The only smoke came from flashlight powder. She kissed her women workers who have labored day and night for three months.

Both Mrs. McCormick and Mrs. Longworth were brown for the former's debut as a senatorial nominee, Mrs. McCormick's suit with diagonal stripes, Mrs. Longworth's severely plain.

Back in her suite, Mrs. McCormick again became the cold, practical politician and issued a statement.

"I am now the nominee of the republican party and I ask the united support of the party in the coming campaign. After this session of congress I shall return to Illinois and as the standard bearer of the party in the campaign which will close in November I shall make as vigorous a campaign as I have made for the nomination."

Giving way to her feelings a trifle, she said:

"I would be less than human if I were not greatly pleased with the result of the primary election. Any man and particularly any woman would be grateful over the convincing majority given me."

A review of her world court, tariff and farm relief issues brought the statement to a close.

Over in LaSalle Street in Senator Deneen's law offices, the outlook was less cheerful but far from downcast. Returns indicated that his city and county ticket went to defeat with him, thus giving the William Hale Thompson faction of the party ascendancy again, following defeat two years ago.

Mrs. McCormick returns to Washington this afternoon to take up her work as a congresswoman again, a job which she won two years ago with 1,700,000 votes, even leading Herbert Hoover on the ticket.

Then with congress out of the way, Mrs. McCormick returns to Illinois to take up the fight against James Hamilton Lewis, nominated by the democrats yesterday with hardly a vote against him.

In the republican race for congressman-at-large, Frank L. Smith, twice denied a seat in the U. S. senate because of excessive campaign expenditures, seemed assured of nomination although J. L. Johnson was running close behind him.

Renomination for the same office apparently was certain for Richard Tate, a former governor.

Congressman Oscar De Priest, negro, had little trouble in securing renomination. Easy victories were also

"There will be no walkout," he said. "The students will do what I say."

The board of education gave no reason for its refusal to reappoint Wetzel whose retention the parents of many students were said to have demanded. Students held a mass meeting as soon as the board's action became known and voted to strike in protest, setting 10 A. M. as their deadline.

18TH AMENDMENT WORKS CHANGES

CONSTITUTION CHANGES FROM CHARTER OF RIGHTS INTO CRIMINAL STATUTE BOOK

Washington, April 9.—(U.P.)—The eighteenth amendment has changed the constitution from a charter of rights and liberties into a criminal statute book, Rep. Schafer, republican, Wisconsin, told the house judiciary committee today.

Schafer urged the committee to report favorably the bills proposing repeal and modification of the amendment, about which its wet and dry hearings have been centered.

"From the time of the adoption of the eighteenth amendment, rights guaranteed to our people under the constitution have been flaunted and ignored," he said, "as for instance the right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses and effects against unreasonable searches and seizures, and the right that no person shall be deprived of life, liberty or property without due process of law."

Schafer declared prohibition had failed to bring prosperity to the farmers, as its advocates promised before its enactment.

NEARLY TWO-THIRDS OF U MALE STUDENTS DRINKERS, SAYS POLL

Minneapolis, April 9.—(U.P.)—Nearly two-thirds of the male students at the University of Minnesota are drinkers and more than one-third of the co-eds drink frequently or occasionally, on the basis of figures obtained in a poll announced by the Minnesota Daily, undergraduate newspaper.

The poll recorded the prohibition opinions and drinking habits of 2,344 students and a small group of faculty members.

Voting on prohibition 1,387 favored repeal or change in the eighteenth amendment, and 957 were for enforcement.

The poll showed 988 men and 141 women as occasional drinkers; 137 men and 38 co-eds frequent drinkers, and 607 men and 362 women total abstainers.

"Frequent drinkers" were defined for the purpose of the poll as those drinking at least once a week. Occasional drinkers were those drinking less than once a week.

Congressmen Morton D. Hull and W. A. Michaelson likewise were chosen again and late returns indicated renomination for Congressmen A. J. Sabath, Fred A. Britten, Frank Reid and Stanley N. Kunz.

Little opposition was shown against the democratic regular organization candidates in any of the ten districts.

Northerns May Buy Big Portion of Trackage and Lease a Section From Burlington Road

THEREBY GAIN ENTRANCE INTO CITY OF CHICAGO

NOW LOOMS AS ALTERNATE IN PROPOSED MERGER OF NORTHERNS

SUCH A STEP, IF PRACTICAL, MIGHT SATISFY THE I. C. C.

New York, April 9.—(U.P.)—Purchase of a large portion of trackage of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy railroad and the leasing of another section so that they may have an entrance from the Twin Cities to Chicago, now looms as one of the alternatives in the proposed merger of the Northern Pacific and Great Northern railroads.

Such a step, if practicable, might satisfy the interstate commerce commission, which has fixed the divorce of the Burlington from the Northern as one of the conditions of approval of the merger.

Charles Donnelly, president of the Northern Pacific, pointed out that an entry into Chicago was one of the most important factors in the success of the Northern and added that if such entrance were denied, it is likely that merger plans would be abandoned and the application before the interstate commerce commission withdrawn. He stated that if merger plans were completed to the satisfaction of all parties, announcement would be made within a month, and that final discussions would likely take place here.

When the interstate commerce commission refused to allocate the Burlington to the Northern in its official consolidation plan, there were many objections on the part of both roads. Officials pointed out that there would be financial difficulties as Burlington stock has been given in security for Northern's financing.

Under the new plan, the Northern would buy outright the section between the Twin Cities and Aurora, Illinois, while the section from Aurora to Chicago would be leased.

Washington, April 9.—Railroads through their holding companies are able to avoid government control over the issuance of securities, Joseph E. Eastman, interstate commerce commissioner, testified today before a house committee investigating holding companies.

Regular legislation is needed, he said, not only to prevent unauthorized consolidations, but to give the interstate commerce commission complete authority over the issuance of railroad stocks and bonds.

St. Paul, Minn., April 9.—(U.P.)—Minneapolis and St. Paul police differed today as to the validity of the confession of Andy Mann, negro slayer of Earl Tague, 16, St. Paul, to the murder of Dorothy Aune, 12, Minneapolis, last August.

Chief Harry Lindholm and Herbert Paradeau, detective captain, Minneapolis, said that the story appeared to be a pure fabrication.

Herman A. Vail, St. Paul captain of detectives, said on the other hand that he believed the story was true. Chief Lindholm, Captain Paradeau, Floyd Olson, Hennepin county attorney, and Mayor W. F. Kunze, Minneapolis, will go to the Stillwater penitentiary tomorrow to question Mann about the Aune case.

Mann will also be asked about the killing of Pearl Oaten, found slain in October, 1927, not far from a place where Mann is known to have worked.

Trees they saw in New Zealand. But apparently the antipodes can not produce the equal of an American steer. "We're still waiting for that steak," Van Der Veer said.

Long, state commissioner of taxation and corporations today. This compared with an indicated loss of $72,221,498 for 1928 and a loss of $42,786,727 for 1927.

POST OFFICE APPROPRIATION MEASURE IS UP

LEASING SITUATION IS TO BE CONSIDERED BY THE SENATE

HOUSE PURSUES EVEN TENOR OF ITS WAY, WITH CALENDAR BILLS

Washington, April 9.—(U.P.)—More fireworks were expected in the senate today as that body considered the post office appropriation bill, but the house pursued the even tenor of its way, plugging along on calendar bills.

The post office leasing situation, which some investigators describe as "reeking with fraud and corruption" and "compared with the Teapot Dome resulted from a congressional controversy over the lease of a post office building in St. Paul. Senator Blaine has demanded a searching investigation of the post office department leasing policy.

Advocates of the resolution are predicting an inquiry will reveal the government is paying from $40,000,000 to $50,000,000 a year more for post office rentals than is justified. Consideration of the post office department appropriation bill was expected to bring this situation into discussion again. Prior to this, however, the senate was to consider two nominations of district commissioners.

Rep. George Holden Tinkham, republican, Massachusetts, congressional "big game hunter" and ardent wet, was called before the senate lobby committee today to amplify his charge that the Methodist Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals is a lobbying organization and a law-violator.

Tinkham has been waiting for a long time for his appearance before the lobby committee and was loaded down with charges against both the Methodist Board and the Federal Council of Churches.

Meanwhile the committee was faced today with a demand from Senator Robinson, republican, Indiana, to subpoena the books and records of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, which, according to Robinson, has refused to turn them over to the committee investigator.

Meanwhile, in the senate naval affairs committee records of correspondence between high navy officials over the efforts of Lieut. Alford J. Williams to continue his work on high powered planes while "battleship" admirals sought to send him to sea, were to be produced.

The interstate commerce committee of the house was to continue hearings on railroad legislation, while the judiciary committee was occupied with amendments to the Jones act.

Arrest Mill City Man on Charge of Robbing Bank

Minneapolis, April 9.—(U.P.)—Nicholas G. Carey, 22, was under arrest today on a charge of robbing the Lewis State Bank, Lewis, Wis., of $7,000 on March 21. INDIA KEEPS UP ITS PASSIVE RESISTANCE PLAN

FOLLOWS CAMPAIGN LAID OUT BY MAHATMA M. K. GANDHI

HE AND HIS FOLLOWERS ARE BREAKING BRITISH SALT LAW OF INDIA

Bombay, India, April 9.—(U.P.)—The government of India continued today its passive resistance to the efforts of the Mahatma M. K. Gandhi to force his arrest for breaking the salt monopoly laws.

Gandhi, who dramatized his breach of the salt laws by marching for days across India to the sea near Jalapur, proceeded to the village of Bhimrad this morning, where his son was arrested Monday in connection with the elder Gandhi's civil disobedience campaign.

The energetic Indian leader, accompanied by a group of selected volunteers, witnessed on the way his followers collecting salt, emulating his own example.

Others have done the same in various localities during the week, and about 75 have been arrested since Sunday.

At Bhimrad today the women sang revolutionary songs as Gandhi arrived. Gandhi encouraged them to participate in the movement in order to incite the police to arrest them. He said if they did, he was confident such a wave of indignation would sweep the country the government would be compelled to surrender.

In the Surat district contraband salt has been freely sold and used this week.

The reaction in Bombay has been slight, and the city was quiet today, although the stayagrabs again boiled sea water at various points along the Bay of Cambay.

Four Gandhi followers were fined 100 rupees each at Ahmedabad yesterday.

TWO MEN HOLD UP DAWSON BANK, STEAL $2100 CASH

1 BANDIT STANDS GUARD, THE OTHER SCOOPS UP SILVER AND BANK NOTES

Dawson, Minn., April 9.—(U.P.)—Two men held up the First National Bank today and escaped with $2,100 in silver and banknotes.

The bandits entered the bank shortly after it had opened and forced the four employees and one customer who was in the bank to lie down on the floor.

While one bandit stood guard, the other scooped up the cash from the teller's drawer and the open safe. He neglected to remove $5,000 in liberty bonds which lay in the safe.

The bandits escaped, driving a small sedan and were believed headed for the Twin Cities or Watertown, S. D.

While the holdup was in progress, three people entered the bank including one woman, Miss Ellen Dale, and were forced to lie on the floor with the other witnesses of the robbery.

Theodore Thompson, bank cashier, reported that the men who were young and well dressed, had been seen in Dawson yesterday.

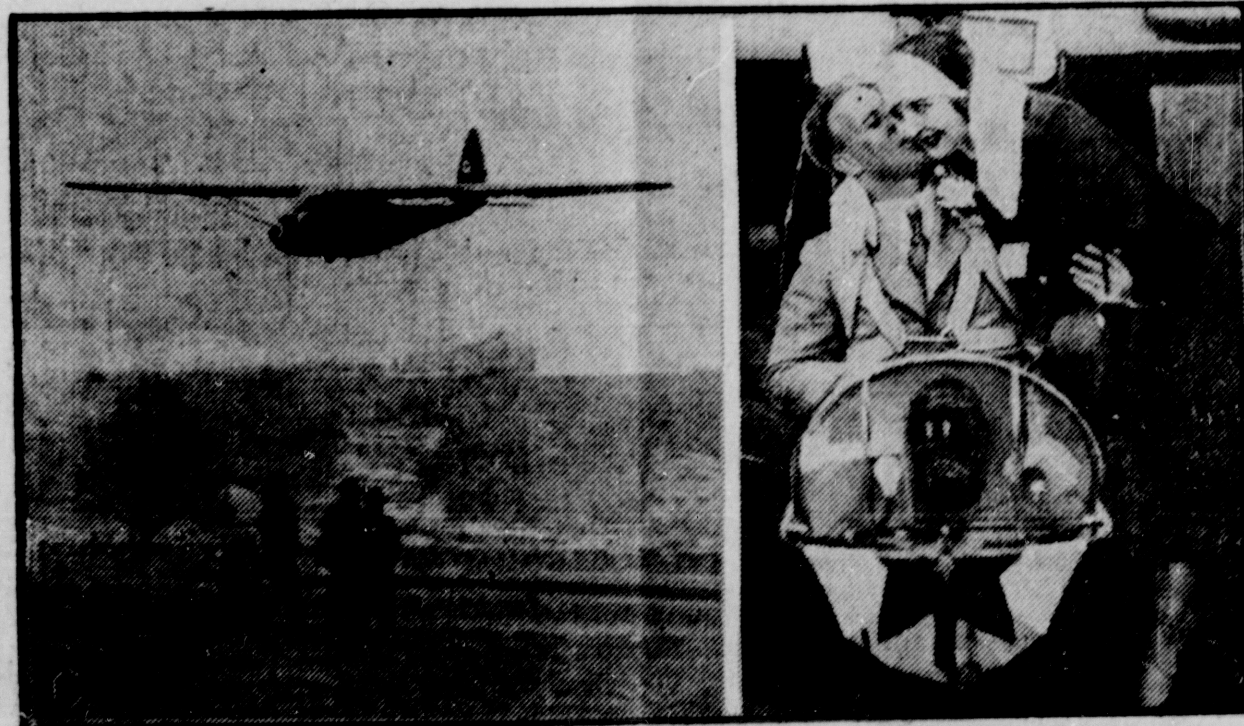

Sheriffs of surrounding counties and the police of the Twin Cities and Watertown were notified immediately and guards were placed on the highways in an attempt to head off the holdup men.

VANGUARD OF BYRD EXPEDITION IS NOW AT NEW YORK CITY

SIGHT OF TREES AND JUICY
STEAKS ALMOST OVER-
COMES BOYS

COME TO TOWN WITH TWENTY MILES OF MOTION PIC-TURE FILMS

New York, April 9.—(U.P.)—The vanguard of the returning Byrd Antarctic expedition arrived last night with 20 miles of motion picture film and an unfilled longing.

The sight of trees and some big, juicy steaks were the chief yearnings of Joseph Ricker and Willard Van Der Veer, cameramen, after spending two years on a desert of ice. Trees they saw in New Zealand. But apparently the antipodes can not produce the equal of an American steer. "We're still waiting for that steak," Van Der Veer said.

Mrs. Ricker, who met her husband in Dunedin, New Zealand, said her husband noticed most the change in women's styles and in automobile bodies. Mrs. Van Der Veer joined her husband at Balboa, Canal Zone.

EXCLUDE WITNESSES FROM KELLER TRIAL

St. Paul, April 9.—(U.P.)—All witnesses except the one on the stand will be excluded from the courtroom during the trial of William Keller, suspect in the holdup of the Payne Avenue State Bank on March 17.

When not on the stand, the witnesses will be guarded by deputy sheriffs. Judge Hugo O. Hanft ruled today. The $1572 in currency recovered from two of the suspects in the holdup when they were arrested in a cottage near St. Paul was introduced as evidence as the trial opened.

TO REGULATE BUS TRAFFIC INTERSTATE

Washington, April 9.—(U.P.)—The house bill providing for regulation of interstate bus commerce was voted a favorable report today by the senate interstate commerce committee.

Several minor amendments were attached to the bill, but it remains essentially the same as passed by the house, Chairman Couzens said.

CONGRESS TODAY

Senate

Lobby committee continues prohibition inquiry.
Naval affairs sub-committee continues Williams inquiry.

House
Takes up calendar bills.
Interstate commerce committee continues railroad hearings.

FORD MOTOR CO. PROFITS IN 1929 OVER 81 MILLION

Boston, Mass., April 9.—(U.P.)—The Ford Motor company made an indicated profit of $81,797,861 in 1929, according to the company's balance sheet filed with Henry F. Long, state commissioner of taxation and corporations today. This compared with an indicated loss of $72,221,498 for 1928 and a loss of $42,786,727 for 1927.

POST OFFICE APPROPRIATION MEASURE IS UP

LEASING SITUATION IS TO BE CONSIDERED BY THE SENATE

HOUSE PURSUES EVEN TENOR
OF ITS WAY, WITH CALENDAR BILLS

Washington, April 9.—(U.P.)—More fireworks were expected in the senate today as that body considered the post office appropriation bill, but the house pursued the even tenor of its way, plugging along on calendar bills.

The post office leasing situation, which some investigators describe as "reeking with fraud and corruption" and "compared with the Teapot Dome resulted from a congressional controversy over the lease of a post office building in St. Paul. Senator Blaine has demanded a searching investigation of the post office department leasing policy.

Advocates of the resolution are predicting an inquiry will reveal the government is paying from $40,000,000 to $50,000,000 a year more for post office rentals than is justified. Consideration of the post office department appropriation bill was expected to bring this situation into discussion again. Prior to this, however, the senate was to consider two nominations of district commissioners.

Rep. George Holden Tinkham, republican, Massachusetts, congressional "big game hunter" and ardent wet, was called before the senate lobby committee today to amplify his charge that the Methodist Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals is a lobbying organization and a law-violator.

Tinkham has been waiting for a long time for his appearance before the lobby committee and was loaded down with charges against both the Methodist Board and the Federal Council of Churches.

Meanwhile the committee was faced today with a demand from Senator Robinson, republican, Indiana, to subpoena the books and records of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, which, according to Robinson, has refused to turn them over to the committee investigator.

Meanwhile, in the senate naval affairs committee records of correspondence between high navy officials over the efforts of Lieut. Alford J. Williams to continue his work on high powered planes while "battleship" admirals sought to send him to sea, were to be produced.

The interstate commerce committee of the house was to continue hearings on railroad legislation, while the judiciary committee was occupied with amendments to the Jones act.

Minneapolis detectives who arrested Carey last night also were seeking the son of a Hennepin county employee, charged with being Carey's accomplice in the holdup.

TWO MEN HOLD UP DAWSON BANK, STEAL $2100 CASH

FORCE 4 EMPLOYEES AND A CUSTOMER TO LIE DOWN ON FLOOR

1 BANDIT STANDS GUARD, THE OTHER SCOOPS UP SILVER AND BANK NOTES

Dawson, Minn., April 9.—(U.P.)—Two men held up the First National Bank today and escaped with $2,100 in silver and banknotes.

The bandits entered the bank shortly after it had opened and forced the four employees and one customer who was in the bank to lie down on the floor.

While one bandit stood guard, the other scooped up the cash from the teller's drawer and the open safe. He neglected to remove $5,000 in liberty bonds which lay in the safe.

The bandits escaped, driving a small sedan and were believed headed for the Twin Cities or Watertown, S. D.

While the holdup was in progress, three people entered the bank including one woman, Miss Ellen Dale, and were forced to lie on the floor with the other witnesses of the robbery.

Theodore Thompson, bank cashier, reported that the men who were young and well dressed, had been seen in Dawson yesterday.

Sheriffs of surrounding counties and the police of the Twin Cities and Watertown were notified immediately and guards were placed on the highways in an attempt to head off the holdup men.

RUTH T. MAITLAND GRANTED A DIVORCE

ROTARIANS NAME MANY CANDIDATES

Result of Primary Vote of Last Meeting Announced at Meeting Held April 8

11 DIRECTOR CANDIDATES

From This List the Club at the May 6 Session Will Select Five For Board

It seemed to be a field day for candidates at the April 1 meeting when about every member except the pianist and one lone Rotarian was nominated for director. Everybody voted and the result was announced last Tuesday.

From the long list voted for, the 11 highest stand for the general election to be held May 6. Usually only 10 are winnowed down in the primaries but two, it seems, tied.

The 11 to be voted on for directors include Hal Day, Frank N. Russell, G. D. LaBar, Dr. R. A. Beise, Earl Draper, C. N. Erickson, W. H. Gemmell, R. C. Gould, Dr. George H. Ribbel, A. J. Sullivan and D. E. Whitney. The five highest will become the board members and they in turn will name the officers.

The speaker of the day was Henry J. Cohen, and he was introduced by President S. R. Adair. Mr. Cohen, who has lived 48 years in Brainerd, gave many interesting reminiscences. They will be reviewed in a later article. Although the eighties had no radio, telephone, airplanes, movies, talkies, etc., said the speaker, there were many homely pleasures in the way of recreation which fully compensated for the new things of today. There was no artificiality in the old days and everyone enjoyed himself hugely, summer or winter. The toboggan club did not dread 30 below, and the bicycle club punctured clouds of mosquitoes without a quail when they pedaled their way on paths to the Gull lake. The grand march at the opening of a hotel had so many in line that it extended from the lobby, past the refreshment bar, around the billiard tables and on into the dining room.

Prey on Fish. Among the enemies of American fish, are the kingfisher, the great blue heron, otter and mink, the latter two not only killing for food but also for love of killing.

ROTARIANS NAME MANY CANDIDATES

Result of Primary Vote of Last Meeting Announced at Meeting Held April 8

11 DIRECTOR CANDIDATES

From This List the Club at the May 6 Session Will Select Five For Board

It seemed to be a field day for candidates at the April 1 meeting when about every member except the pianist and one lone Rotarian was nominated for director. Everybody voted and the result was announced last Tuesday.

From the long list voted for, the 11 highest stand for the general election to be held May 6. Usually only 10 are winnowed down in the primaries but two, it seems, tied.

The 11 to be voted on for directors include Hal Day, Frank N. Russell, G. D. LaBar, Dr. R. A. Beise, Earl Draper, C. N. Erickson, W. H. Gemmell, R. R. Gould, Dr. George H. Ribbel, A. J. Sullivan and D. E. Whitney. The five highest will become the board members and they in turn will name the officers.

The speaker of the day was Henry I. Cohen, and he was introduced by President S. R. Adair. Mr. Cohen, who has lived 48 years in Brainerd, gave many interesting reminiscences. They will be reviewed in a later article.

Although the eighties had no radio, telephone, airplanes, movies, talkies, etc., said the speaker, there were many homely pleasures in the way of recreation which fully compensated for the new things of today.

There was no artificiality in the old days and everyone enjoyed himself hugely, summer or winter. The toboggan club did not dread 30 below, and the bicycle club punctured clouds of mosquitoes without a quail when they pedaled their way on paths to Gull lake.

The grand march at the opening of a hotel had so many in line that it extended from the lobby, past the refreshment bar, around the billiard tables and on into the dining room.

They see crowds of men—of fine garments—of shrewd values.

The Trans-Neptunian Planet

BRAINERD DISPATCH readers have followed with interest the news stories detailing discovery of a new planet and how a young man developing photographic plates at the observatory in Arizona caught the first glimpse of the new body.

Last evening the Brotherhood of the First Evangelical Lutheran church heard a fine exposition of the discovery of the planet, the events leading up to the discovery, and many things concerning the science of astronomy, as set forth by their minister, Rev. August Samuelson. The minister has been a tireless student in this and many other scientific fields and gave to the brotherhood the results of his studies and observations.

"Some men grow famous over night," he observed. "Others have to labor and it is only after they have been dead and gone for a century or more that they become famous. Dr. Percival Lowell of the Flagstaff observatory of Arizona began investigations for this planet 25 years ago. He had noticed peculiar movements of the planet Uranus for some time. These movements meant a lot to him. They could be caused by nothing else but another planet that had not yet been found.

Dr. Lowell died in 1916 but his work was continued. Dr. V. M. Slipher, director of the Lowell observatory, and C. O. Lampland were untiring in their efforts to carry out the program of the late Dr. Lowell. In spite of all these preparations carried on for a period of 25 years by scientific men, it was left to a young man of 24 years of age to be the real hero of the event. The young man referred to is Clyde W. Tombaugh. He was born February 4, 1906, near Streator, Ill. He came to the Lowell observatory in January, 1929, and commenced work with the telescope with which the new planet was discovered.

March 13, 1930, was a great day in the life of this young man. It became a great day in the realm of astronomy. Three instruments have helped to bring the stars of the heavens so near to us that it is possible to study them. These instruments are the telescope, the spectroscope and the camera. It was by means of the telescope and the camera that this new planet was found.

The science of astronomy is not new. It is one of the oldest. The oldest books of the Bible make references to the stars and even name several of the constellations. The book of Job is rich in allusions to this wonderful science. King David was not ignorant of the wonders of the heavens. If we rightly understand the language of the heavens, we will have the grandest interpretation of the Scriptures.

Six of the planets were known to the ancients. This includes the earth. The five nearest planets can be seen by the naked eye. Saturn was the limit of the solar system to the ancients. The satellites of these planets were discovered in recent years. Between Mars and Jupiter there is a vast expanse of space measuring over 300,000,000 miles. In this vast space are found the asteroids numbering more than 1,500. Some of these measure some eight miles in diameter. Several of these have been named.

Uranus, the seventh planet, was discovered by Sir William Herschel in England March 13, 1781. Neptune was discovered by Leverrier and Galle in 1846. These two planets cannot be seen by the naked eye. Uranus is 1,782,000,000 miles distant from the sun. Neptune is 2,793,500,000 miles from the sun. The new planet, which as yet has no name, is over a billion miles outside the orbit of Neptune. It is not a large body, only about 14,000 miles in diameter. We are told that it is black as coal and dense as zinc. It is of the fifteenth magnitude. The force of gravity is twice that of the earth, so that with a spring balance a 150 pound man would weigh something like 325 pounds on this planet. A cranberry placed three and a quarter miles from a globe two feet in diameter makes a model of the planet in relation to the sun. Dr. Lowell had by actual measurements discovered where the new planet was to be found, but it was young Tombaugh who found it.

Owing to its enormous distance from the sun it requires about 300 years to make its revolution. The year on the new planet is therefore 109,500 of our days. It is out of question to conceive of life in any form on this planet.

This unexpected discovery has aroused much interest in the field of astronomy. The near future will bring us many more revelations in this field. Man has not measured the immense space and will never be able to do it. As we study these wonderful revelations in the heavens we can not help but give glory to the Creator, Ruler and Preserver of this mighty universe where we as individuals are but as a little speck of dust. Jesus said: "The heavens and the earth shall pass away but my Word shall remain forever."

Minnesota Gets a Great Cow

IOWA dairymen, from Gov. Hammill to the humblest farmhand, were downcast today, while Minnesota is beginning to realize the honor that is hers.

Miss Jewel Ormsby Piebe, pride of Iowa, and in the opinion of dairymen everywhere destined to prove herself the greatest cow ever produced, has been bought by a Minnesotan, F. E. Murphy, for his Femco Farms, famous Holstein breeding establishment located at Breckenridge. This record shattering animal was produced by Hargrove and Arnold of Norwalk, Iowa.

Jewel is the queen of queens in the Holstein-Friesian world on the basis of butter records she has been piling up in the past three months. Bigger than most great draft horses, this sensational animal is now producing enough milk to furnish 100 babies with a pint of rich food each day, 100 pounds every 24 hours, of which 4.5 per cent is pure butterfat.

Experts from agricultural colleges, hearing of the record being made by this cow, have come many miles to examine her records. In her first 93 days on official test, she has produced 556.16 pounds of butter and 9,762.1 pounds of milk. The test, now in the fourth month, finds her producing in as great volume as ever.

QUITE a discussion has been raised on the Northern Pacific railway and is being participated in by railroad men, grammarians, writers, advertising men and others as to whether a locomotive is to be called a "she" or a "he." It all started when a copywriter called the N. P. Yellowstone type locomotive, 125 feet long and weighing over a million pounds, a "thundering mammoth," a "leviathan" with "huge knots of steel muscles," and felt that with such equipment the engine was a "he."

HOT winds of Sunday have caused the ice to crumble and lakes are showing patches of water.

THE NEW CHRYSLER SIX

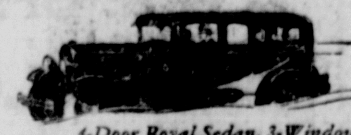

Another great triumph of great engineering

The new Chrysler Six comes to the public at a price that almost anyone can afford—a splendid tribute to the Chrysler ability to turn out extraordinary values. It is a typical Chrysler creation from rims to roof—by long odds the finest motor car ever to appear in the field of lower-priced sixes.

Here at amazingly low prices are the great advantages of Chrysler engineering—such advantages as weatherproof internal-expanding 4-wheel hydraulic brakes; 62-horsepower high-compression engine; special-type spring shackles and shock absorbers; and typically Chrysler-styled bodies of new design and construction.

Such a car at such a price is hardly believable, yet here it is. There is no reason—now—why anybody should be denied the thrill and pride of owning a Chrysler.

Big kernels in small shells

In addition to the advertisements of the big department stores, of the grocery and hardware stores, of the millinery, clothing and shoe stores, there is another kind of advertising that is being read more and more by readers of this newspaper. That kind of advertising is the Classified Columns.

A man or woman wants a job. They read the "Help Wanted" columns and probably insert an advertisement of their own under "Positions Wanted." Employer and job seeker soon get together to the benefit of both. A man may want an automobile—possibly he cannot afford a new car, so he looks in the "For Sale" columns and finds just the car at the price he can afford to pay. Some one has lost a pocketbook, valuable papers or even a pet dog. The "Lost and Found" columns soon bring loser and finder together.

The Classified Columns are so arranged that any one can readily find what he seeks quickly—business news, machinery and tools, household goods, horses, dogs, cats, canaries, etc. They enable you to locate what you are looking for in short order. So in reading advertising do not overlook the classified columns—the individual advertisements do not take up much room, but like the meaty nut they may contain a big kernel in a small shell—just for you.

Read the advertisements for your own good . . . classified columns as well as display advertisements

The Trans-Neptunian Planet

BRAINERD DISPATCH readers have followed with interest the news stories detailing discovery of a new planet and how a young man developing photographic plates at the observatory in Arizona caught the first glimpse of the new body.

Last evening the Brotherhood of the First Evangelical Lutheran church heard a fine exposition of the discovery of the planet, the events leading up to the discovery, and many things concerning the science of astronomy, as set forth by their minister, Rev. August Samuelson. The minister has been a tireless student in this and many other scientific fields and gave to the brotherhood the results of his studies and observations.

"Some men grow famous over night," he observed. "Others have to labor and it is only after they have been dead and gone for a century or more that they become famous. Dr. Percival Lowell of the Flagstaff observatory of Arizona began investigations for this planet 25 years ago. He had noticed peculiar movements of the planet Uranus for some time. These movements meant a lot to him. They could be caused by nothing else but another planet that had not yet been found.

Dr. Lowell died in 1916 but his work was continued. Dr. V. M. Slipher, director of the Lowell observatory, and C. O. Lampman were untiring in their efforts to carry out the program of the late Dr. Lowell. In spite of all these preparations carried on for a period of 25 years by scientific men, it was left to a young man of 24 years of age to be the real hero of the event. The young man referred to is Clyde W. Tombaugh. He was born February 4, 1906, near Streator, Ill. He came to the Lowell observatory in January, 1929, and commenced work with the telescope with which the new planet was discovered.

March 13, 1930, was a great day in the life of this young man. It became a great day in the realm of astronomy. THE NEW CHRYSLER SIX

Another great triumph of great engineering

The new Chrysler Six comes to the public at a price that almost anyone can afford—a splendid tribute to the Chrysler ability to turn out extraordinary values. It is a typical Chrysler creation from rims to roof—by long odds the finest motor car ever to appear in the field of lower-priced sixes.

Here at amazingly low prices are the great advantages of Chrysler engineering—such advantages as weatherproof internal-expanding 4-wheel hydraulic brakes; 62-horsepower high-compression engine; special-type spring shackles and shock absorbers; and typically Chrysler-styled bodies of new design and construction.

Big kernels in small shells

In addition to the advertisements of the big department stores, of the grocery and hardware stores, of the millinery, clothing and shoe stores, there is another kind of advertising that is being read more and more by readers of this newspaper. That kind of advertising is the Classified Columns.

A man or woman wants a job. They read the "Help Wanted" columns and probably insert an advertisement of their own under "Positions Wanted." Employer and job seeker soon get together to the benefit of both. A man may want an automobile—possibly he cannot afford a new car, so he looks in the "For Sale" columns and finds just the car at the price he can afford to pay. Some one has lost a pocketbook, valuable papers or even a pet dog. The "Lost and Found" columns soon bring loser and finder together.

The Classified Columns are so arranged that any one can readily find what he seeks quickly—business news, machinery and tools, household goods, horses, dogs, cats, canaries, etc. They enable you to locate what you are looking for in short order. So in reading advertising do not overlook the classified columns—the individual advertisements do not take up much room, but like the meaty nut they may contain a big kernel in a small shell—just for you.

WOUNDED BANDIT
ENTERS HIS PLEA

Shakopee, Minn., April 9.—(U.P.)—

Court adjourned from the newly completed sessions room for a few minutes today to enter the confines of the Scott county jail.

The procedure was made necessary to hear the plea of Fred McCusick to charges of bank robbery. McCusick was wounded in a holdup of the Shakopee bank in December and it was necessary to amputate his leg. Since he could not be moved from his cell, the court adjourned there for the pleading.

Five men entered pleas of not guilty to charges of bank robbery at Shakopee and asked for separate trials. The first of the trials will occur next Monday. The men are charged with holding up banks at Savage and Shakopee.

ANOTHER GAS GUSHER THREAT-ENING TO "RUN WILD" AT ANY MOMENT

Oklahoma City, April 9.—(UP)—A flaming river of oil near the wild Precure gas well threatened the gasclouded sections of the South City field this afternoon before emergency crews put the blaze out.

The fire crept along a stream of waste oil draining from several gushers and soon a line of red flames swept down the stream which was covered with a film of oil.

The fire was extinguished after several emergency fire crews were called.

Oklahoma City, Okla., April 9.—A gas gusher which at any minute might become another "runaway" well caused oil field men in the South City field to move with special alertness today and authorities to restrict operations of other producers.

Another gusher "blew in" yesterday just before its owner, T. B. Slick, the "king of the wildcaters" and his wife were preparing to leave for New York City. Slick ordered men to bring it in before he left, stating he had seen every one of his wells "blow in."

THE NEW HUPMOBILES

The skilled mechanic who repairs motor cars has very little reason, professionally, to love Hupmobile. He sees it but seldom . . . in a business way. But this man, who knows the inside of cars better than any other man save the engineer, invariably says of Hupmobile, "It's a great boat!"

He knows its parts are built with watchmaker care. He knows that its materials and workmanship have passed rigid engineering tests.

There are some thrilling facts about the new Hupmobiles. Colossal excess power. Dazzling speeds. Performance that takes you through mud and sand as suavely as on macadam.

But the greatest story of Hupmobile is still . . . as always . . . the extra years of faithful service that are under its hood. The mechanical excellence that has ever been its "unwritten trade-mark."

TOURIST BUILDING PROGRAM PLANNED

Chamber of Commerce Enters Extensive Preparation for Biggest Tourist Year

MAPS NEARLY COMPLETE

Start Campaign to Impress Country With Advantages of Brainerd Lake Area

The Brainerd Chamber of Commerce in its program to impress the country with the advantages of the Brainerd lake area as the most desirable location for a summer playground will conduct the following program this spring and summer:

Publish and distribute 35,000 tourist maps of this section showing the locations and accommodations of 255 resorts, over a thousand lakes, rates, roads, this city, towns and villages, scenic drives, and golf courses.

Conduct an exhibit at the Chicago Outdoor Exposition from May 5 to 10 showing the attractions of the Brainerd lake region to thousands of prospective tourists.

Establish a tourist information bureau in Brainerd and at Garrison with an employed clerk to give out maps, circulars, and any information desired by the tourist and to have him register.

Take motion pictures of the best resorts in the district to show between seasons at commercial clubs, luncheon clubs and other organizations in the southern states from where Brainerd derives much of its summer tourist business.

Cement a better fellowship feeling between Brainerd, its citizens, the resorts and tourists.

The tourist committee of the Chamber of Commerce in charge of this progressive movement includes: R. E. Wyatt, chairman, Frank N. Russell, R. L. Geist. The committee will be assisted by every member of the Chamber of Commerce in a one hundred percent cooperative move to make this season the greatest tourist year yet.

The Chamber of Commerce has this in mind which every serious minded citizen of Brainerd and the district should consider as it pertains directly to their welfare.

The Brainerd lake area surpasses any section of the Northwest for summer tourist facilities and beauty.

A total of $87,000,000 was expended by tourists in the state of Minnesota last year according to figures announced by the Ten Thousand Lakes Association.

That, considering the natural attractions, modern and other types of accommodations the many resorts have to offer, entertainment features, golf courses, and hundreds of lakes teeming with fish, open highways and beautiful scenic drives, the Brainerd lake area should do a tourist business in 1930 exceeding three million dollars.

That only through cooperation of every resort in the section, every merchant, and every citizen with the tourist and resort owner can the project be successfully carried out as desired.

The Brainerd lake area booth at the Chicago Outdoor Exposition will be known as "The Land of Hiawatha" and will bring the name of Brainerd prominently before hundreds of thousands of people who will view it. The booth will be 20 feet by 18 feet and will contain an exhibit of the lake area in this section and present a powerful argument to the tourist why he should spend his summer here.

Those having specimens of attractive fish, bass especially, and other wild life and desire to assist in building the exhibit are requested to get in touch with any of the members of the tourist committee.

The tourist information bureau booth, as is now planned, will be located at the northwest corner of Sixth and Oak streets where tourists will register as they enter the city and where the clerk in charge will give out any information pertaining to resorts and lakes in the Brainerd area, roads, scenic drives, pamphlets on resorts, etc.

TO BE EXHIBITED

Will be Included as Unusual Mounted Specimen at Chicago Outdoor Exposition

A fully grown white muskrat exhibited by Deputy Game Warden A. P. Cardle and trapped by Orville Borden at Borden Lake caused a sensation here today.

Mr. Cardle reported that the muskrat is the second of its kind ever known to be trapped. He said that the only other white muskrat known to have been captured was trapped by John Parker at Lake Aida, Pine River 25 years ago.

The muskrat is pure white in color with the exception of its long tail which is pink and its eyes which are brown.

The animal has been turned over to the Crow Wing County Game Protective League and will be preserved by Miller and Rice, taxidermists. It will be exhibited in connection with "The Land of Hiawatha," Brainerd lake district booth, at the Chicago Outdoor Exposition from May 5-10 at Chicago where it will dispel doubts of several hundred thousands of people who believe that such an unusual colored muskrat does not exist.

CRITICS PRAISE LOCAL PIANIST

Alice Regina Johnson Given Fine Reception at Chicago Debut

Alice Regina Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. B. Johnson, Brainerd, who has been a resident of Chicago for some years, made her debut on March 27 as a concert pianist when she played under the management of Jessie B. Hall.

The concert was a triumphant success with the press and public. Miss Johnson had numerous recalls, encores and afterward several hundred friends congratulated her.

To quote Charles Watt in Music News:

"Miss Johnson who has been known for several years as a sincere and brilliant young pianist, blossomed forth at this concert in truly virtuosic style."

"She played the F minor Etude of Liszt with a sweep and dash that challenged the mind to follow and yet she played it with a delicacy and an assurance that left no fear of any running off the track or any other catastrophe, and the 'Molto Vivace' (Dohnanyi), utterly novel as a closing piece, showed such vigor as well as correctness of style as to place her in the very forefront of young American pianists."

Rosenfeld in "Daily News": "Miss Johnson displayed a clear and serviceable technical equipment and a musical intuition."

Agnes Beldon in "Musical Leader": "Gave accurate and musicianly performances of Bach, Mozart, Brahms and Liszt; a striking version of 'Dohnanyi's Molto Vivace' and secured liberal recognition."

Edward Moore in "Chicago Tribune":

"Is apparently of the caliber to give hope for the cause of young American artists being a well trained musician—particularly effective in an Intermezzo of Brahms."

Karelton Hackett in "Chicago Evening Post":

"Miss Johnson played 'Childhood Memories' of Mullinger with imagination and expressive power. Had a sense of the picturesque and gave each of the 'memories' with distinctive character. Brought good tone from the piano and had variety of shading at her command. Technique sure and clean. Has talent."

Hewman Davies in "Chicago Evening American":

"Heard in Bach, Mozart and Brahms, she showed admirable powers of native and acquired technical and interpretative execution and expression."

"Unless I am a poor prophet, she is destined for an enviable career. I do not know the name of her instructor, but her training seems to me flawless."

Very rarely does it happen that a debut recital wins the unanimous praise of the critics in a city like Chicago. This achievement marks a milestone in Miss Johnson's career. Already she has a number of fine concert dates for 1930-31. She also has a steadily growing class of pupils at the American Conservatory of Music.

Why we waited 6 months to announce this new oil to the public . . .

Last October, after a year of research, a new type motor oil was perfected. Announcement of it was delayed 6 months to give it the most thorough tests possible in actual use.

We can now definitely make the following statements:

1. New Iso-Vis means less wear on every moving part of the automobile engine.
2. It does not "thin out" with use.
3. It gives effective lubrication over a wider range of temperatures—both high and low.
4. It means a radical reduction of carbon deposits—far less than in most premium-priced oils.

With New Iso-Vis you get a type of lubrication that has not been possible before, regardless of the kind of oil you have used.

This improved New Iso-Vis Motor Oil is now on sale at all Standard Oil dealers and service stations.

HUNDREDS of cars, of practically every make and model, were used in road tests under the toughest conditions possible, to prove the superior value of New Iso-Vis as a motor lubricant. These rigid tests were successful even beyond our expectations. The 4 points at the right give the details.

SAVE THE EXPENSE and bother of carbon removal. Again, thorough tests and experiments have proved that New Iso-Vis has less tendency toward carbon residue than other oils.

New Polarine is also affected by our new refining processes—giving it an efficiency which is exceeded only by New Iso-Vis. The price is 25 cents a quart.

Damage of about $5 was done by fire to a partition in the home of John Hughes, 109 A street N. E. at 12:30 p. m.

A rabbit was burned to death in a fire at 3:45 p. m. yesterday when a grass fire spread to the rabbit shed at the rear of the home of Joe Harmon, 1102 Sixth avenue N. E.

Buyers today demand known goodness . . . dollars must bring a real return . . . and so motorists are buying more than

TWICE AS MANY

Buicks as any other car priced above $1200.

Men and women in all walks of life are now seeking positive value. They are demanding the most and best for their dollars. And so today more than ever the trend is to Buick.

Not only are motorists driving 700,000 more Buicks than any other of the 15 makes of cars in its price class—not only are they awarding Buick from 35 to 50 per cent of the combined sales of these fifteen makes—but they are giving Buick a greater proportion of the total sales in its field than at any previous period in Buick history.

See Buick with Body by Fisher—compare it—consider the tremendous buyer preference revealed in the above figures—and you'll agree that Buick does provide greater value in all elements of motor car appeal.

WHEN BETTER AUTOMOBILES ARE BUILT, BUICK WILL BUILD THEM

Why we waited 6 months to announce this new oil to the public...

Last October, after a year of research, a new type motor oil was perfected. Announcement of it was delayed 6 months to give it the most thorough tests possible in actual use.

We can now definitely make the following statements:

1. New Iso-Vis means less wear on every moving part of the automobile engine.
2. It does not "thin out" with use.
3. It gives effective lubrication over a wider range of temperatures—both high and low.
4. It means a radical reduction of carbon deposits—far less than in most premium-priced oils.

With New Iso-Vis you get a type of lubrication that has not been possible before, regardless of the kind of oil you have used.

This improved New Iso-Vis Motor Oil is now on sale at all Standard Oil dealers and service stations.

HUNDREDS of cars, of practically every make and model, were used in road tests under the toughest conditions possible, to prove the superior value of New Iso-Vis as a motor lubricant. These rigid tests were successful even beyond our expectations. The 4 points at the right give the details.

SAVE THE EXPENSE and bother of carbon removal. Again, thorough tests and experiments have proved that New Iso-Vis has less tendency toward carbon residue than other oils.

New ISO-VIS Motor Oil

New Polarine is also affected by our new refining processes—giving it an efficiency which is exceeded only by New Iso-Vis. The price is 25 cents a quart.

"MASTER of MONEY"

BY ROY VICKERS

CHAPTER LII.

"HEY say about thirty of them came through, Mrs. Brennaaway," answered Abramovl apologetically. "Seven of them tried to surrender and they think four got away. Some of them are after the four now and expect to get them, as they were wounded."

Shirley turned from him and for a moment thought she would fall from the mare. Summoning all her strength of will, she thanked Abramovl and rode back to camp.

When she reached camp it was half-past nine. The whole battle, in which the most formidable band of comitadj had been wiped out, had lasted little more than an hour. She remembered the machine guns and knew what must lie round the bend out of sight. With this in mind, she collected a couple of foremen and told them to take all the laborers and clear the tracks.

At the shack Petros ran out to meet her, capering like a wild Macedonian "Zeto Kyria!" he cried wildly and then, suddenly returning to his role of respectful servant, explained apologetically in French. "Pardon, Madame, that is but to offer Madame my respectful congratulations."

"Is he better then?" demanded Shirley excitedly. She had forgotten the battle, Stephanos, Abramovl, everything but Alan.

"But no, madame—" Shirley did not wait. She knew all the remorse of neglected duty as she rushed into the dug-out. She stared down at his closed eyes and thought that he was sleeping until he moaned.

"Alan, Alan, I had to leave you—I could do nothing!" she wailed. "Don't die, Alan—don't die. Life is so gorgeous."

Before ten o'clock they got Alan into his bed in the shack. As the heat rose he became restless, the moaning increased, and more than once she caught the word "water." "The mouth may be moistened but he must not drink," warned Petros. "It is horrible but it is not serious, madame."

To Shirley it was the most serious thing in the world. She moistened his lips with a rag dipped in water, then thought of sponging his face and chest.

It was a laborious process, for she had to keep him covered with a mosquito net lest the flies torment him. Petros stood by her till she sent him to rest.

Presently, cooled by her bathing, he dropped to sleep. She waited motionless beside him for ten minutes, then crept to her own bed.

She was dozing when he shouted her name with sudden sharpness. "I'm here, Alan!" she called, and ran to his bedside. "What do you want?"

"Shirley!" he repeated. "Shirley! Get into your dugout!"

"It's all right, Alan—there's no need to get into a dugout, it's all over. You'll be glad to hear—"

She stopped as she saw that he could not hear her. He was sitting up in bed, his eyes glassy. She tried to force him back on the pillows and could not.

"That's better!" he rapped out. "They've got no guns and a rifle bullet can't possibly get her in the dugout. Now for those Serbians! Come on, you devils, get out those mules!"

She shuddered as she realized that he was now utterly beyond her control. While he raved she mechanically moistened his lips and sponged him, uncertain whether she was doing the right thing for him, guessing that at any moment he might seize her and strangle her, not knowing even that she was there.

"Slacken fire, Abramovl. One man in three now, and stand by to belt when I give the word."

With uncanny precision, he was going over all the details of the battle as he had planned them—as she had carried them out.

"Shirley!" he shouted. "Shirley—you can come out of the dug-out. We've won. . . . Steady, you fool, for God's sake don't kiss her. She doesn't want to. It isn't love—it's only honor. She has paid her debt and she wants to pay it again and again out of pride. She'll give anything to be allowed to go on paying. She doesn't love anybody."

"Don't kiss her, don't touch her!" Shirley, my friend, were beaten them. Come into the shack and have some food—no, drink—I am thirsty. Water . . . water . . . water."

He sank down into unconsciousness and was still. She went on moistening his lips while her own thoughts stamped on the words he had uttered. "It isn't love—it's only honor." He was confused, of course. In delirium some of the words were sensible and some were not. What did he mean by "it"? Nothing, of course. A delirious raving. Fiercely she told herself that the words meant nothing whatever.

He flung himself around in the bed.

"Oh, you want me to marry Shirley, too, do you, Cardew? Well, I'm not going to do it. Here's my resignation from the club. I've no moral obligation towards her whatever—she has brought the whole situation upon herself. . . . You're very clever, Mrs. Sibley, but I'm not going to argue with you."

"Who told you you could call yourself Mrs. Brennaaway? And what do you think you're going to gain by all these little wifely touches? I wish you wouldn't dust this room. You're throwing the dust all over the place and making me thirsty. Give me some water. The dust is choking me. I'll give you all the money I have for some water. Oh, the dust—I can't breathe!"

He was rising up in the bed and she made the discovery that by crossing her hands over his forehead she could lower him back again. Then with one hand still pressing on the forehead with all the strength she could spare, with the other she continued the bathing. For hour after hour, it seemed, her left hand went endlessly to the water bowl.

"You're tempting me. . . . Damn you, Shirley, do you think I'm made of steel? . . . Day after day in the same house. Night after night. You're too clever to play the wanton. . . . You're breaking me down but I won't touch you, I won't, I won't."

"She isn't trying to marry you after all. Own up. Be fair to her. You've misjudged her all these months and behaved damned dishonorably towards her. She wanted to pay her debt. She knows Maurois fixed all that for her and that's why she's going to be a hostage. By God, if they hurt her I'll stop the work and get a thousand Serbians and we'll torture every one of those damned rats. If they've killed her I shall go mad!"

"It was mad of her to come up here. She mustn't stay in the camp. . . . Speak to her, you fool, and end all this trouble. . . . No, if you really love her, keep your mouth shut. Get away and leave her to someone she can love, without any debt-paying. . . . Don't look at her. Talk about work all the time. . . . I want a drink."

Shirley started as she heard a footstep behind her. It was Petros.

"He may be given quintine as soon as the heat of the day has passed, madame," he said. "It is nearly four o'clock."

"Perhaps we could try it," said Shirley doubtfully. "It may stop the delirium."

She poured a dose and with difficulty got it between his lips. He dropped back, limp, and for a few agonized seconds she wondered whether she had killed him.

"I can't nurse him through this—I don't know enough," ran her thoughts. "And Petros doesn't really know anything. And the treatment may be different for Greeks."

"Petros, if I bring the car into the clearing, can you carry him into it? It's no good going on like this. I'm going to take him down to Salonika and look up a hospital."

"I can carry him, madame," answered Petros. "But who will drive?"

"I will drive myself. You come with me in the car until we get out of camp, then hurry back here and tell Abramovl that we decided to go down to see about stores. I shall be back here before dawn."

Shirley arrived in Salonika shortly after midnight, drove to the hospital and left Alan in the care of a highly competent staff.

In the course of that nightmare journey she had seen her whole life and his—had pieced together the fragments of his delirium and solved the mystery of their relationship during the last eight months.

Alan had assumed at the start that she wished to marry him without loving him. He had frequently changed his views later and believed that she wished to give herself to him out of pride. It was a pity he should think that, but it was unimportant when compared with the main discovery that he loved her.

Exultation at the knowledge had been checked by the horror of having to stand by him while, all unknowingly, he was pouring out his most secret thoughts about her.

SEA'S WANDERING

"Have you ever gone motoring?" the Black Sea was asking David.

David was paying a call on the Black Sea, for he was seeing and meeting the people from his geography book when they were off duty and not having lesson time.

"My father owns a car," said David. "Well, you know how you come to crossroads when you're motoring?"

"Yes."

"Constantinople, near me, is right at the crossroads of most important trading routes."

"Then there is Odessa, north of me—Odessa is as important a wheat port as ever you'd be likely to find."

David couldn't quite picture himself as traveling around measuring the wheat ports of the world, but Black Sea seemed to enjoy telling him this, and in a moment or so he knew the reason why.

"All that grain, yes, every bit of it, that is shipped from Odessa to the western countries must pass through me and go past the great trade corners at Constantinople."

Black Sea was very proud of this.

"The crossroads between Europe and Asia," he continued, "are on the very narrowest part of the waterway between me and my friend and correspondent Mediterranean. Constantinople has a fine harbor on the Strait of Bosphorus."

"One of your postmen," David interrupted.

Black Sea rippled with pleasure.

"That's the fellow," he said. "He's a handsome fellow. He has castles and fine fortresses, and villages and beautiful scenery, but Constantinople is so proud of her harbor. She calls her harbor her peninsula page for he guards the big ships that anchor there, and in honor of such a duty she has called him the Golden Horn. She has walls too as have a number of our cities in Eastern Hemisphere."

"I noticed some in England, too," David said. "When I was flying around on a little pleasure ride Pilot gave me, though I didn't think to speak of it at the time—I was seeing so much."

"Don't know much about England personally," said Black Sea, "as we never come directly in touch with each other—but indirectly we do. Oh, yes, Black Sea has many friends."

"Well, I'll never call you inhospitable," said David.

"Is that a hint?" Black Sea asked. "A hint?"

"Oh, I thought maybe you meant it as a hint and that you'd like something to eat. I've some luncheon here for you—do you like oysters?"

"I guess I can swallow them," David said, without much enthusiasm.

But so proud was Black Sea of his oysters that he didn't notice David's answer, and then he became busy in some business matters, and a fog spread over him, so that David left without finishing.

He walked north again through Rumania until he came to Poland where the Vistula river, wandering through the valley, sang softly to himself of farming, minerals, sugar and such.

While he raved she mechanically moistened his lips and sponged him, uncertain whether she was doing the right thing for him, guessing that at any moment he might seize her and strangle her, not knowing even that she was there.

"Slacken fire, Abramovl. One man in three now, and stand by to bolt when I give the word."

With uncanny precision, he was going over all the details of the battle as he had planned them—as she had carried them out.

"Shirley!" he shouted. "Shirley—you can come out of the dug-out. We've won. . . . Steady, you fool, for God's sake don't kiss her. She doesn't want to. It isn't love—it's only honor. She has paid her debt and she wants to pay it again and again out of pride. She'll give anything to be allowed to go on paying. She doesn't love anybody."

"Don't kiss her, don't touch her! . . . Shirley, my friend, we've beaten them. Come into the shack and have some food—no, drink—I am thirsty. Water . . . water . . . water."

He sank down into unconsciousness and was still. She went on moistening his lips while her own thoughts stampeded from the words he had uttered. "It isn't love—it's only honor." He was confused, of course. In delirium some of the words were sensible and some were not. What did he mean by "honor"? Nothing, of course. A delicious raving. Fiercely she told herself that the words meant nothing whatever.

He flung himself around in the bed.

"Oh, you want me to marry Shirley, too, do you, Cardew? Well, I'm not going to do it. Here's my resignation from the club. I've no moral obligation towards her whatever—she has brought the whole situation upon herself. . . . You're very clever, Mrs. Sibley, but I'm not going to argue with you. . . ."

"Who told you you could call yourself Mrs. Brenaway? And what do you think you're going to gain by all these little wifely touches? I wish you wouldn't dust this room. You're throwing the dust all over the place and making me thirsty. Give me some water. The dust is choking me. I'll give you all the money I have for some water. Oh, the dust—I can't breathe!"

He was rising up in the bed and she made the discovery that by crossing her hands over his forehead she could lower him back again. Then with one hand still pressing on the forehead with all the strength she could spare, with the other she continued the bathing. For hour after hour, it seemed, her left hand went endlessly to the water bowl.

"You're tempting me. . . . Damn you, Shirley, do you think I'm made of steel? . . . Day after day in the same house. Night after night. You're too clever to play the wanton. . . . You're breaking me down but I won't touch you, I won't, I won't."

"She isn't trying to marry you after all. Own up. Be fair to her. You've misjudged her all these months and behaved damned dishonorably towards her. She wanted to pay her debt. She knows Maurois fixed all that for her and that's why she's going to be a hostage. By God, if they hurt her I'll stop the work and get a thousand Serbians and we'll torture every one of those damned rats. If they've killed her I shall go mad!"

"It was mad of her to come up here. She mustn't stay in the camp. . . . Speak to her, you fool, and end all this trouble. . . . No, if you really love her, keep your mouth shut. Get away and leave her to someone she can love, with out any debt-paying. . . . Don't look at her. Talk about work all the time. . . . I want a drink."

Shirley started as she heard a footstep behind her. It was Petros.

"He may be given quinine as soon as the heat of the day has passed, Madame," he said. "It is nearly four o'clock."

"Perhaps we could try it," said Shirley doubtfully. "It may stop the delirium."

She poured a dose and with difficulty got it between his lips. He dropped back, limp, and for a few agonized seconds she wondered whether she had killed him.

"I can't nurse him through this—I don't know enough," ran her thoughts. "And Petros doesn't really know anything. And the treatment may be different for Greeks."

"Petros, if I bring the car into the clearing, can you carry him into it? It's no good going on like this. I'm going to take him down to Salonika and look up a hospital."

"I can carry him, Madame," answered Petros. "But who will drive?"

"I will drive myself. You come with me in the car until we get out of camp—then hurry back here and tell Abramovl that we decided to go down to see about stores. I shall be back here before dawn."

Shirley arrived in Salonika shortly after nightfall, drove to the hospital and left Alan in the care of a highly competent staff.

In the course of that nightmare journey she had seen her whole life and his—had pieced together the fragments of his delirium and solved the mystery of their relationship during the last eight months.

Alan had assumed at the start that she wished to marry him without loving him. He had frequently changed his views later and believed that she wished to give herself to him out of pride. It was a pity he should think that, but it was unimportant when compared with the main discovery that he loved her.

Exultation at the knowledge had been checked by the horror of having to stand by him while, all unknowingly, he was pouring out his most secret thoughts about her.

SEA'S WANDERING

"Have you ever gone motoring?" the Black Sea was asking David.

David was paying a call on the Black Sea, for he was seeing and meeting the people from his geography book when they were off duty and not having lesson time.

"My father owns a car," said David. "Well, you know how you come to crossroads when you're motoring?"

"Yes," "Constantinople, near me, is right at the crossroads of most important trading routes."

"Then there is Odessa, north of me—Odessa is as important a wheat port as ever you'd be likely to find."

David couldn't quite picture himself as traveling around measuring the wheat ports of the world, but Black Sea seemed to enjoy telling him this, and in a moment or so he knew the reason why.

"All that grain, yes, every bit of it, that is shipped from Odessa to the western countries must pass through me and go past the great trade corners at Constantinople."

Black Sea was very proud of this. "The crossroads between Europe and Asia," he continued, "are on the very narrowest part of the waterway between me and my friend and correspondent Mediterranean. Constantinople has a fine harbor on the Strait of Bosphorus—"

"One of your postmen," David interrupted.

Black Sea rippled with pleasure. "That's the fellow," he said. "He's a handsome fellow. He has castles and fine fortresses, and villages and beautiful scenery, but Constantinople is so proud of her harbor. She calls her harbor her peninsula page for he guards the big ships that anchor there, and in honor of such a duty she has called him the Golden Horn. She has walls too as have a number of our cities in Eastern Hemisphere."

"I noticed some in England, too," David said. "When I was flying around on a little pleasure ride Pilot gave me, though I didn't think to speak of it at the time—I was seeing so much."

"Don't know much about England personally," said Black Sea, "as we never come directly in touch with each other—but indirectly we do. Oh, yes, Black Sea has many friends."

"Well, I'll never call you inhospitable," said David. "Is that a hint?" Black Sea asked. "A hint?"

"Oh, I thought maybe you meant it as a hint and that you'd like something to eat. I've some luncheon here for you—do you like oysters?"

"I guess I can swallow them," David said, without much enthusiasm.

But so proud was Black Sea of his oysters that he didn't notice David's answer, and then he became busy in some business matters, and a fog spread over him, so that David left without finishing.

He walked north again through Rumania until he came to Poland where the Vistula river, wandering through the valley, sang softly to himself of farming, minerals, sugar and such.
